

Chapter 2 Websites

Dr. Mac Behavior Management Advisor

www.behavioradvisor.com

This site offers thousands of tips on managing behavior and provides step-by-step instructions for implementing standard interventions. It also contains a bulletin board for posting disciplinary concerns and receiving suggestions from teachers around the world. Advice is listed by major headings such as bright ideas for managing student behavior and strategies for common types of behavior problems. This is an informative, fun, and user-friendly site.

Intervention Central (RTI)

www.interventioncentral.org

Intervention Central provides teachers, schools, and districts with free resources to help struggling learners and implement response to intervention. Great samples of checklists help students monitor behaviors and academics.

NEA Classroom Management Resources

www.nea.org/tools/ClassroomManagement.html

The National Education Association provides teachers with help managing their classrooms. The site includes an Ask the Experts section where you can describe your situation and you'll have an answer from experts within 24 hours. You can also pose your questions to peers and get suggestions. Some of the topics on the sites with strategies include prevention, behavior control, staying ahead, and taking attendance.

PE Central

www.pecentral.org

A section titled Creating a Positive Climate for Learning is dedicated to behavior management in physical education. The site includes information on classroom management, lesson ideas, tips for beginning teachers, PE rules, FAQs, articles, books, and links to websites. Physical educators can submit lesson ideas in classroom management. Also included is a list of rules submitted by various physical educators.

Teachers' Guide to Class Management

www.theteachersguide.com/ClassManagement.htm

The site includes free worksheets, smart boards, templates, and lesson plans for teachers. An extensive section on classroom management includes a variety of behavior management strategies such as management tips, free printables, and forms (e.g., incentive charts). Also included are instructional videos such as handling interruptions and creating rules and rubrics to prevent bullying.
